We have a large and intentionally crafted brand portfolio. You see, we want to offer each customer segment a tailored experience and a broader selection of products and services. In other words, strong brands drive success for our business.

Our brands are governed by brand councils. These consist of colleagues with different perspectives, such as legal, communications and sustainability professionals.

Atlas Copco Group develops innovative solutions across business areas including air compression, vacuum, industrial, and power techniques. With a global portfolio of 70+ brands, we enable technology that transforms the future.

Our organization is decentralized. We have chosen this model as we believe whoever is closest to the problem is often closest to a timely solution. So being decentralized allows us to remain agile, even as a global Group. Let us look at how the puzzle pieces of our organization fit together.

The board of directors is responsible for the organization and management of the Group. They regularly assess the Group's financial situation and financial, legal, social and environmental risks. That way, the board can ensure that the organization is designed for satisfactory control. The board of directors is also responsible for recruiting and appointing the President and CEO.

The President and CEO is responsible for the daily management of the Group, following the board's guidelines and instructions. He or she should also ensure that the whole organization works towards achieving our Group targets.
