Chargepoint monthly fee

Station owners or roaming partners may choose to charge by the kilowatt hour (kWh), by the hour, using a flat fee, minimum or maximum fee, or an overnight or idle fee. Some connections offer discounted pricing. Some station owners charge one price for the first hour or two of charging and a different price thereafter.

On our chargepoint account, they initially take a $20 deposit as a credit on the account for them to bill charging fees against, then replenish that balance in $20 increments. If you are signing up through a specific program for your apartments and there is a monthly subscription fee, then it's your apartments charging the fee to make an extra ...

The ChargePoint Essential cloud plan offers a competitively priced software fee that is covered by driver payments for charging. All revenue beyond this fee is remitted back to the station owner monthly, and activation of the stations is included under the Essential cloud plan at no extra charge.

EVgo charges $0.35 a minute for fast charging with no fee or commitment. For those who want to pay $7.99 a month, you only pay $0.31 a minute. No idle fees apply. ChargePoint is found at popular retail locations. While some companies absorb the cost, ChargePoint will charge $10 to your card at signup if it isn't free.

I was excited that my apartments installed ChargePoint chargers until I learned there was a $20 a month junk fee just to use the charger plus electricity on top of that. I don't mind paying for the electricity of course, but the junk fee just to USE it? It's my understanding the fee goes to ChargePoint? Is that normal?

At first I thought "well, they had to pay to install it" which makes sense. But did they? It's my understanding that tax incentives got them installed for free. If that's the case, then they should have to provide it to tenants for free, which was the point of the tax incentives.
