The Office of the Secretary directly supports the Secretary of Energy, a member of the President's Cabinet, in leading the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) and carrying out its mission. The Deputy Secretary and the Deputy Secretary's team are also members of the Office of the Secretary.

The Office of the Under Secretary for Infrastructure deploys energy infrastructure investments to communities around the country. These efforts aim to renew our nation's infrastructure, rebuild domestic manufacturing, create millions of good-paying jobs, address climate change, and increase American competitiveness.

The Office of the Under Secretary for Science and Innovation oversees the nation's largest federal sponsor of basic research in the physical sciences; DOE's applied research and development in nuclear, fossil, and renewable energy, as well as in energy system integrity; and 13 of the 17 Department National Laboratories and their facilities.

NNSA is a semi-autonomous agency within the Department of Energy that protects our nation by designing and delivering a safe, secure, reliable, and effective U.S. nuclear stockpile; forging solutions that enable global security and stability through nonproliferation, counterproliferation, and emergency response; providing nuclear propulsion to power the U.S. Navy; and more.

A small number of offices at the Department operate outside of the traditional reporting structures to protect their independence and the autonomy of their office mission.
