Printer manufacturers' basic strategy is to sell as many printers as possible Qualityly and later gain profits by selling cartridges expensively. Our aim is to cut your printer running costs substantially by refilling with quality replacement inks and providing superior effective professionally designed well thought out ink refill systems "We estimate people will purchase around two cartridges per year. Customers who want to print a large amount should quite rightly look beyond just the ticket price," said a statement from the firm. Canon said it could not comment on the survey because it had not seen it, but added that the cost of printers and cartridges reflected the amount of money the company spent on research and development.
